Education in Nuremberg

A comprehensive range of schools for general education and institutes offering vocational and continuing education as well as several colleges and universities make sure that young people receive education at the highest possible level. State-sponsored and municipal schools of all types and many vocational schools demonstrate that Nuremberg really is a city of education. Application-related research and intense networking between research facilities and universities help creating “Think Tanks” to work on topics like digitization, electric mobility, embedded systems and many more.

The Faculty of Economics and Social Sciences as well as the Faculty of Education, both part of the Friedrich Alexander University Erlangen-Nürnberg, are located in Nuremberg, as are the Music Academy, the College of Fine Arts, the Georg-Simon-Ohm College of Technical Sciences and the Protestant College of Higher Education.

Furthermore there are several research facilities like the Fraunhofer IIS (Fraunhofer Institute for Integrated Circuits), Fraunhofer IISB (Fraunhofer Institute for Integrated Systems and Device Technology), EnCN (Energy Campus Nuremberg), NCT (Nuremberg Campus of Technology), Helmholtz-Institut Erlangen-Nürnberg für Erneuerbare Energien (Helmholtz Institute Erlangen-Nürnberg for Renewable Energy), Bionicum Forschungszentrum (research center for nature conservancy and environment protection), ESI – Anwendungszentrum (Embedded Systems Initiative), Leibniz-Gemeinschaft Germanisches Nationalmuseum (Leibniz Association Germanisches Nationalmuseum), IAB Institut für Arbeitsmarkt- und Berufsforschung (Institute for Employment Research).

The public library – Germany’s oldest municipal library – and the municipal archives, one of the largest in Germany, are frequently used cultural / historical institutions.
